As I galloped tack through the woods, continued the Anjor, the camoon-shot, screaming by manual the trees and sending the rail fences into the interest course, warned me that the contest had begun. But we me on the battle-ground. There, apon the verge of that sloping bill, and through the graveyand, was drawn up the British line tacker General Riall, in force three times greater than our brigade, his right covered by a powerful bettery of nine pieces of artillery. two of them brass twenty-fours.

The Eleventh and Twenty-second regiments first leaving the wood, deployed upon the open ground with the conlones and regularity of a regiments first from the enemy's line and from the batteries, which completely commanded the position, opening upon them with tremendous effect. Tow-ou, leaving hurried up with his guas on the left, in vain endeavored to intain sufficient elevation to return the fire of their battery. The destruction on our side was very great. The two regiments faught with consummate bravery. Severeity cut up, the ammunition exhausted, and their officers nearly all of them kilked of wounded, they were withdrawn from action, the few officers remaining undust throwing themselves into the Nirth, which now amne into action, led by the gallant Colonel L avenworth.

The brant of the battle now came upon them, and they alone sustained it for some time, fighting with unfinishing bravery, until their numbers were reduced to one-half by the fire of the enemy. At this juncture, General Scott galloped up with the intention of charging the bill; but finding hiers or much weaker, altered his intention, entereding them to hold their ground until the reinforcement, which were hastening on, should come to their assistance. A m stan of the battery, manifestly the key of the position.

I was standing at the side of Colonel Miller, said the Major, when General Brown rode up and inquired, whether he could storm the battery with ms regiment, while General Ripley supported him with the younger regiment, the Thenty-third.— Tiller, and the uproar and confusion, deliberately surveyed the position, then quietly turning with minite coolness, replied, "Pillery, Sir." I think I res him now, as drawing up his gigantic figure to us full height, he turned to his regiment, drilled to the precision of a piece of mechanism. I hear his ening's arillery and infantry opened murderousty upon them.

They flinched not—they faltered not—the stern toices of the officers, as the deadly cannon shot cut yawning classus through them, alone was heard: "Close up—steady, men—steady,"— within a landred yards of the summit, a rolley, darp, instantaneous, as a clap of thunder; another moment, rushing under the white smoke, a chort, furious struggle with the bayonet, and the critilerymen were swept like enaft from their guis.
Lincher fierce struggle, the enemy's line was forcedown the side of the hill, and the victory was curs, the position entirely its our hands, their own pieces urned and playing upon them in their retrast. It was bought at a grael price, most of the officers being either killed our wounded. The whole tide of the battle now turned to this point.
The result of the conflict depended entirely upon the ability of the victorious party to retain it—daign Hindman was ordered up; and posted his forces at the side of the captured cannon, while the American line correspondingly advanced.

Strug with montheation, Gen. Drummond concentrated his force, to relaxe by a desperate Stung with mortification, Gen. Drummond concentrated his forces, to relaxe by a desperate charge the position. The interval amid the darkness was alone filled by the roar of the canaries, and the grouns of the wounded. He advanced with strong reinforcements, outfilmking each side of the American line. We were only able, in the multy darkness, to accertain their approach by their heavy tread: "They halted within twenty paters, poured in a rapid fire and prepared for the rush." Directed by the blaze, our been netured it with deathy effect, and, after a desponant struggle, the dense column recoiled. Another interval of duriness and silence, and again a most furious and desperate charge was made by the British, throwing the whole weight of their attack upon the American center, the gallant Trocaly-first, which composed it, receiving them with andaunted firmness, which the fire from our lines was dreadfully effective: Hindman's ariliery being served with the most perfect colones and effect. Staggering, they again recoiled.

During the second attack, Gen. Scott in person, his shattered brigade now consolidated into a single bottalion, made two determined charges upon the right and left flank of the enemy, and in these ite received the scars which his countrymen now the upon his manly front. Our teen were now elmost worn down with fatigue, dying with thirst, for which they sould gain no relief. The British, with fresh reinforcements, their men recruited and letted final effort to regain the position. They advanced, delivered their fire as before, and although it was returned with the same deadly effect, reachily pressed forward. The Treenty first again sustained the abook, and both lines were soon engaged in a conduct, obstinate and dreadful right and left of the American line fell back The right and left of the American line fell back for a moment, but were immediately railied by their officers. "So desparate tild the battle now become, that many bartalions on both sides were forced leek;" the men, engaged in indiscriminate melce, fought hand to hand, and with muskets clubbed; and "so terrific was the conflict where the cannon were stationed, that Major Hindman had to engage them over his guns and gun-carranges, and finally to spike two of his pieces, under the apprehension that they would fall into the hands of the enemy." At length a most desperate means of warfare on this continent have the enemy, all hads; they warreed, recoiled gave way, and, the center soon following, they relinquished the fight and made a final retreat.

The annals of warfare on this continent have never shown more desperate fighting. Bayonets were repeatedly crossed, and after the action, many of the men were found mutually transfixed. Regarding it as unconstitutional, he never favored appropriations for evods, rivers and harbors. I cannot, of course, enter into a detailed reference to particular votes. One or two most suffice as speciments. In June, 1836, whilst he was a miniber of the House of Representatives, a bill was introduced taking a large appropriation for the continuation of the Comberland road. On the final vote his name stands recorded among the mays.

Again, in 1838, whilst he was in the Senate of the United States, he gave a similar vote against a bill for precisely the same purpose. Gen. Pirror is commended to Southern support on account of his reliability on the Slavery ques-tion and his invariable hostility to all appropriations for "Roads, Rivers and Harbors," There is no dispute, or doubt, North or South, East or West, as to his position on these questions. The Con-rention which nominated him resolved plump against Internal Improvements. Gen. Pieker, in his letter of accoptance, endones the platform, as embodying his principles, and insists that no word or action of his public life is "in conflict with it." His Southern supporters echo this sentiment and point to his votes in Congress in proof of the fact. point to his votes in Congress in proof of the fact that "he never favored appropriations for Roads, Rivers and Harbors." And yet the People of the West, with these undisputed and indisputable facts before them-with the full knowledge that Gen. Prence is an avowed enemy to their leading interests-are urged and expected, by the orators and organs of the bogus " democracy," to cast their votes for him at the coming election! Are they quiteready to sacrifice all their interests at shrine of party? We rather think not.

In our columns this morning will be found a very spirited and faithful narrative of this mentor-ible action; one of the bloodiest and most warmagainst great odds, on that occusion, is part of the has attempted to tear from Gen. Scorr's brow the aurels he so nobly earned on that hard-fought | Orator, Statesman and Patrion field. But now that his name has been presented, by his grateful countrymen, as a Candidate for the highest office in their gift, partison presses have commenced the ignoble work of decrying his great services and defaming his military character. The Buffalo Convier of Tuesday last devotes a can-labor candidate, the London Times, the great roluun and a half to this ungrateful task : trying not only to rob Gen. Scorr of all the glory of does not conceal its gratification at Mr. Preace's Landy's Lane, but even taxing him with having nomination. It is delighted with him, "as a decommitted a blunder in precipitating the action and wantonly sacrificed the fives of nearly nine hundred men. Nay more, it accuses him of a like blunder, and a cruel sacrifice of life at Molino del Rey, which it ascribes to "wanton rashness, or the lack of judgment!" Nothing could be none mjust or uncalled-for than these calumnious as aulta upon Winfigld Scott, and the American People will call to a strict account these reckless and mendacious partisan prints which, in their hot and distempered party zeal, do not hesitate to blacken one of the brightest names in the gallery of Illustrious Americans. The Madison Democrat and Argus, by way f making a case against Gen. Scott, published the following :--

From the Editor of the New York Tril From the Editor of the New York Tribune.

"Send a delegate to the Convention, if you can, for Clay; if not for Clay, for Corwin; if not for Corwin, for Seward, for Taylor. But last of all for Scott. Scott is a van, conceited coxcomb of a man. His BRAINS, all that he has, are in his EPAULETS, and if he should be elected President, he would tear the Whig party into tatters, in less than six months."

The editor of the N. Y. Tribute has again and again branded the above paragraph as a forgery, Mr. Cobb, of Auburn, to whom the letter was written from which this extract purports to have A SCOTT WHIC.

How THEY TALE OF WINFIELD SCOTT.-The Janesville "Democratic" Standard, in its zeal to disparage the Whig candidates, does not hesitate to speak of Gen. Wissierb Score in the following

Mr. Webster is a man whom the intelligent of the Whig party would have delighted to honor, and he who would have delighted to honor, and the Whig cause; whereas, having Winfield Scott forced upon them, who has nothing to board of but his epachetts; who was, in his vigor, but an exceedingly reak and coin man, and now, the profited by experience, by tenson of leng continued flattery, is but the present fleet and upon the feel ashaned and mortified that whigery is of fillen as to be represented by such a leader.
